The Institute for Global Engagement should be considered a funding source for faculty and students who need to travel to improve the international dimension of their pedagogy or to teach abroad:

- ❖ Course-embedded travel
 - ❖ Funding to visit OCS sites, including Grinnell-in-London
 - ❖ OCS-sponsored faculty development seminars
 - ❖ Funding for interdisciplinary faculty groups to visit a site
 - ❖ Funding to visit sites to prepare for course-embedded travel
 - ❖ Co-curricular travel funding (i.e. non-classroom groups wishing to travel to a site)
 - ❖ Funding to teach in China, India, or elsewhere
- Wilson Program

Funding for Academic Speakers

- Overview: <https://www.grinnell.edu/about/leadership/offices-services/dean/visiting-scholars>
- Alumni in the Classroom: <http://www.grinnell.edu/academics/centers/wilson>
- Department/Concentration Speakers Fund: Most departments have a fund for academic speakers. You can work with your ASA to identify the total funding available for the year, and make a request to your departmental colleagues. The format for such requests vary by department.
- Center for the Humanities: <https://www.grinnell.edu/academics/centers/humanities>
- Rosenfield Program in Public Affairs, International Affairs, and Human Rights: <https://www.grinnell.edu/academics/centers/rosenfield>
- Center for International Studies (CIS-sponsored visitors are usually faculty providing short courses or semester-long courses, i.e. actual credit-bearing instruction and not just lectures): <http://www.grinnell.edu/global/institute>
- Center for Prairie Studies: <https://www.grinnell.edu/academics/centers/prairie-studies>
