The Institute for Global Engagement should be considered a funding source for faculty and students who need to travel to improve the international dimension of their pedagogy or to teach abroad:

- ❖ Course-embedded travel
 - ❖ Funding to visit OCS sites, including Grinnell-in-London
 - ❖ OCS-sponsored faculty development seminars
 - ❖ Funding for interdisciplinary faculty groups to visit a site
 - ❖ Funding to visit sites to prepare for course-embedded travel
 - ❖ Co-curricular travel funding (i.e. non-classroom groups wishing to travel to a site)
 - ❖ Funding to teach in China, India, or elsewhere
- Wilson Program

Funding for Academic Speakers

- Overview: <https://www.grinnell.edu/academics/arc/affairs/services#acadspeakers>
- Alumni in the Classroom: <http://www.grinnell.edu/academics/centers/wilson>
- Alumni Scholars program: If you have a nomination for an alumni scholar, please consult with your department or concentration first, and then contact Royce via email at wolf@math.grinnell.edu. The short nomination statement should include the name of the alum, year graduated, what the alum has done after graduation, what the alum would do while on campus, and the approximate date of the visit.
- Department/Concentration Speakers Fund: Most departments have a fund for academic speakers. You can work with your ASA to identify the total funding available for the year, and make a request to your departmental colleagues. The format for such requests vary by department.
- Center for the Humanities: <https://www.grinnell.edu/academics/centers/humanities>
- Rosenfield Program in Public Affairs, International Affairs, and Human Rights: <https://www.grinnell.edu/academics/centers/rosenfield>
- Center for International Studies (CIS-sponsored visitors are usually faculty providing short courses or semester-long courses, i.e. actual credit-bearing instruction and not just lectures): <http://www.grinnell.edu/global/institute>
- Center for Prairie Studies: <https://www.grinnell.edu/academics/centers/prairie-studies>
