

Grinnell College Tree Map

David Montgomery, Fall 2009, Mentored Advanced Project (Advisor: Eric Carter)

Contents

- Home
- Rationale
- Methods
- Other Resources

Grinnell College is home to a fascinating array of native and exotic trees. While a number of other publications have been created over the years to help students, faculty, and community members utilize this resource (see Other Resources), this electronic rendition is unique. Not only can it be easily updated by the college as they plant and remove trees, it allows for easy access to web resources to help people to learn about these organisms in the familiar surroundings of the college. I hope this map will be used as an educational tool to learn about the trees, as well as inspire people to go out and explore our trees for themselves.

The map may take a few minutes to fully load. If you don't have Google Earth, it can be downloaded for free here:

<http://earth.google.com/>

Explore Grinnell College's trees on Google Earth

